- SMEs in Indonesia generally include various businesses, one of which is a business engaged in manufacturing, namely a business that processes from basic materials to finished goods. This production activity certainly requires the sacrifice of economic resources in the form of various types of costs in an effort to earn income. These costs will be the basis for determining the cost of production. The elements that make up the cost of production can be grouped into three, namely the cost of raw materials, direct labor costs, and factory overhead costs. These three costs must be carefully recorded and classified according to the type and nature of the costs. This aims to make it easier for companies to find out how much the company actually costs to produce a product.
